Seattle psychologist suspended due to mental illness

OLYMPIA — State health officials have immediately suspended the license of Seattle psychologist Wendy Woodard (PY00001980). Charges by the Examining Board of Psychology say Woodard is unable to practice with reasonable skill or safety due to a physical or mental condition.

Woodard has 20 days to request a hearing and cannot practice in Washington until charges are resolved.

The charges can be seen online by clicking, "Look up a health care provider" on the Department of Health website; copies can be requested by calling 360-236-4700. That's also the number to call to file complaints against health care providers in Washington.

The Examining Board of Psychology protects public health and safety in Washington by regulating the competency and quality of health care providers under its jurisdiction. The board establishes, monitors, and enforces qualifications for licensing, consistent standards of practice, continuing competency mechanisms, and discipline.
